Firm Foundation

Nothing Can Undermine It in Norway.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Norway residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

O. I. Pitts, blacksmith, Main St., Norway, Me., says: "Several years ago I had kidney trouble. I had caught cold in my kidneys and there were pains across the small of my back. The kidney secretions bothered me and were distressing in passage. When I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply at Stone's Drug Store. The use of a few boxes cured me. I will always recommend this remedy." (Statement given July 24, 1905.)

LATER TESTIMONY

When Mr. Pitts was interviewed by one of our representatives, on April 30, 1912, he said: "Doan's Kidney Pills always give me great benefit. I am glad to recommend them again." 24 25

Sewing Turnip Seeds.

Written for the Advertiser.

Come all good farmers tried and true, And let me tell you the story of mine. In this fast age of labor strikes; Of high cost living and the like, About the things we do better do. Let me just tell you about my seeds. An' stay at home an' till our ground; Roll up our sleeves an' fight the weeds, An' keep right on sowing our turnip seeds.

Let speculating trusts combine To make the people lose the time, And buy up all the corn and flour, And add to their millions hour by hour; Let politicians fume and shout, And try to put each other out, And each declare with loud appeal, On him depends the Nation's weal.

And congressmen debate with heat, 'Bout who's entitled to his seat, And argue long about the cause, And tinker up the tariff laws, An' oftentimes, even make them worse. It makes no difference who wears the belt, We'll have the power good people all in referendum and recall.

And if the judges that they seat, Our expectations do not meet, Their wrong decisions we'll revoke. So if we don't like what they do, Then we'll recall our judges too.

We hold the helm, and 'tis our fate To guide the good old Ship of State, And if the winds and waves are sure, And in the harbor, storms are few, So don't get russy and don't offend, And let us all come out in the end, Let's just quit loading around in town, And stay at home an' till our ground.

Roll up our sleeves an' fight the weeds, An' keep right on sowing our turnip seeds. Love!

W. B. HANLEY.

Revolutionary Soldiers.

Augusta, Maine, June 1, 1912.

Editor of ADVERTISER: Your call for information as to the location of graves of soldiers in the American Revolutionary war, prompts me to remark that my great-grandfather, Nathaniel Leonard, lies in the so-called Cushman or Leonard burying ground on the northerly slope of Owl's Head Hill in Buckfield. He served at Bunker Hill without enlistment, and after the battle was, r-fused enlistment on account of lameness. His daughters, Sarah and Susanna, otherwise my grandmother Morton and "Aunt Susan," used to give me a good many tales of their father's war experiences, such tales as delight a small boy. The favorite story was of his encounter with Gen. Israel Putnam, who was a man of remarkably strong tongue, and who, though from Connecticut, took it upon himself to forbid the enlistment of a lame man, like Nathaniel Leonard, in the Massachusetts troops. Great-grandfather Leonard also served as a sailor on the United States brigantine "Hazard," from Nov. 11, 1777, to May 20, 1778, and was in at the capture of the prize ship Live Oak, which was taken in Long Island sound, while bringing a cargo of shoes for the British soldiers at New York.

His oldest son, Nathaniel Leonard, was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was buried in the same yard.

Nathaniel Leonard, Sr., was a native of Middleboro, Mass., and made his home in Middleboro until the adjoining town of Carver till he brought his family to the District of Maine in 1805 and settled on the place in Buckfield, which remained in the hands of his descendants until the winter of 1883-1884.

My great-grandfather, Eliza Morton, also came from Middleboro to Buckfield, and thence to Hartford, about the same time that the Leonard family came. He is buried in Hartford. I believe that he was the Eliza Morton of Middleboro who was a corporal in Capt. Nehemiah Allen's company in Col. Jeremiah Hall's regiment of Massachusetts soldiers, serving in the defense of Bristol, R. I., and vicinity, from Dec. 8, 1776, to March 10, 1777. This, however, has not been proven beyond the point of probability, as he was not the only Eliza Morton who might have been the corporal.

Truly yours,

D. CROCKETT CLARK.

The Grave of Daniel Packard, family cemetery, is marked by a stone.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. This tube is inflamed, you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and as the tube is restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; none cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can be cured by Eustachian Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

The most interesting game of the Academy's season of base ball was played, Wednesday afternoon, at Fryeburg, between Bridgton Academy and the Academy team, score 20 in favor of Fryeburg. It was a pitched battle between Winslow and Part, with Part slightly in advance. The Bridgtons got but one hit off Part, and only one off Fryeburg's was an earned run. A feature was a fine catch by Rounds. Though rival academies the game was played with good feeling on both sides. A large number of Bridgton people were present, including the principal and assistant principal.

Probate court met at the Argus Not. A. E. Herrick, judge. Wills proved were: James Emerson, Fryeburg; Joseph L. Parker, Lovell; Sarah M. Wakefield, Brownfield; Emma R. Massachusetts and Bunker Hill.

All-the-Way-by-Water to New York.

The Eastern Steamship Corporation announces that the service of their All-the-Way-by-Water Route to New York will be established, beginning June 10, when the great steel steamships, Massachusetts and Bunker Hill, will be placed in service for the season.

The Massachusetts will make the initial trip from Boston on the date named; since last season the Massachusetts and Bunker Hill have had about $400,000 expended upon them for equipment and rearrangement of their passenger carrying facilities.

The changes involve provision of the use of oil instead of coal as fuel, for an enlarged and improved main deck dining room, a hurricane deck cafe and the addition of many attractive staterooms; all of the inside staterooms have been equipped with electric fans, this provision being a decided innovation on steamers engaged in service hereabouts and these inside two-berth staterooms will be sold at one dollar.

Another feature which will add greatly to the attractiveness of these beautiful ships is the fact that they will appear in a summer suit of white. They have heretofore been painted black.

The great ships are more than ever representative types of modern coastwise craft, and a most successful season is predicted for them as they will surely appeal to the army of discriminating travelers from Boston destined for New York and other points beyond reached through that great city.

Joseph Andrews' Letters.

No. XI.
Having arrived safely at my journey's end, and being just now engaged in the pleasant task of resting my bones in my den on my old Homestead Farm in Spring Valley, S. D., it may be of interest to some of your readers, if I give a short synopsis of my journey, and of my three weeks' visiting along the way.

I left Fairport Harbor, Ohio, on the evening of February 9th on a car of the electric line bound for Painesville, where I boarded a sleeper on the night train of the Lake Shore line, and without accident arrived in Chicago about ten the next morning, some two hours late.

Traveling on the cars at the present time is far different from what it was thirty or forty years ago. The old wooden coaches with stoves and as combustible as a tinder box in case of a smash-up are fast going out of date, and are being superseded by the modern and handsome steel cars. Many if not most of the first-class through trains are now made entirely of steel and electric lighted, are as safe as it is possible to make them.

At Chicago the uniformed agents of the Frank Parnille Omnibus Co. meet all in going trains and arrange for the transfer of all passengers and their baggage to the various city depots. I was transferred through the crowded streets of this, the second largest city of the Union, to the C. B. & Q., better known as the Burlington station, where I arrived just in time to catch a train bound for Galesburg, Ill., 133 miles distant, where I arrived late in the afternoon. I was met at the station by Dr. John Ballard, a former Fryeburg boy. As I have made mention of my visits to the doctor on two former occasions, I will relate but one incident of my present visit.

Sunday, Feb. 11th, was the 70th birthday of Dr. Ballard. As other friends were expected from away, the crowning event of the celebration was postponed until Monday evening, when in the dining room of Dr. Griswold's beautiful home a bountiful supper was served to the assembled guests, while the merry laugh went round and joy and gladness seemed to fill the hearts of all. I will here quote from the Galesburg Daily Republican-Leader the following:—"Dr. and Mrs. Griswold very pleasantly entertained a dinner party on Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Griswold's father, Dr. J. A. Ballard. Covers were laid for twelve and the table was prettily decorated with flowers. The out of town guests were Joseph Andrews of Hurley, S. D., Mrs. James Andrews, Ravenswood, Mr. and Mrs. John Sutor, Watago. After dinner a fine social time was enjoyed by all." These were the plates laid, the one not counted being the bright, handsome five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Griswold Ballard Griswold, their only living child and the joy and pride of their home. Little Ballard placed a warm plate in the hands of his father and mother, and that of grandfather and grandmother Ballard.

Mrs. Ballard had just returned from a trip to Wisconsin, where she had gone to attend the funeral of a brother. His death leaves her the last of her father's family. While in Chicago a few months ago visiting friends, she made a misstep in the dark and fell from the porch to the sidewalk four or five feet below, striking on her head and chest. She was picked up unconscious, but revived, and although badly bruised was not seriously hurt. It is said that we are only as old as we feel, and judging from that statement, it is just that Mrs. Ballard had just turned many years reserved for them in which to scatter the seeds of love and kindness along the delectable pathway of their lives."

As I was to take the late evening train for the west I bid my good-bye to my daughter and going to the depot boarded a Pullman sleeper on that best of all railroads, the Burlington, and was soon in the land of dreams. At early dawn the next morning I reached Red Oak, Iowa, a distance of 280 miles from Galesburg, where I left the train in a blinding snow storm. After a wait of two hours I boarded one of the stub line cars bound for Riverport, 30 miles distant, where I visited for three days with Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton. My King net Edgerton was a niece of my wife. Her father, Sam Edgerton, went with me from Iowa to Dakota territory in 1871, where we fled on adjoining claims and together shared the joys and privations of a pioneer's life. Mr. King is the owner of a telephone line, and also an automobile. Had the weather and roads been good he had planned to give me a fine long auto ride, but as it was we were glad to remain inside most of the time and toast our shins before the parlor stove.

On February 16, a train bound for Lincoln bound for College View, near Lincoln, Neb., 130 miles distant. I changed cars at Hamburg, Iowa, and again at Omaha, Neb., and in due time reached Lincoln, where I visited for four days with my brother-in-law, Harrison Means, and family.

Mr. Means is a Seventh Day Adventist. He is a great Bible student and a devout and earnest Christian gentleman. His family at home consists of two daughters, one of them a school teacher, a granddaughter and his wife. He also has a son and daughter who are married and live near; also a son, who is a post-office inspector and whose home is in Kansas City. College View is one of the great religious centers of the Advent denomination. They have built a large college building and dormitories, a fine large church, and one of their well furnished and patronized sanitariums.

Lincoln is a beautiful well regulated city being the State Capitol it has the state house and many other of the state institutional buildings located there. Lincoln is also the home of Nebraska's best beloved and most highly respected citizen, W. J. Bryan, who although he may never be President, yet retains the love and esteem of the American people as few have ever done before. Several times I passed near the Bryan home located midway between College View and Lincoln. The fine brick mansion, bare and outbuildings stand well back near the middle of a large field. This field forms a part of the noted Bryan farm homestead. Nearby the little Methodist church, known as the Bryan church was pointed out to me. Mr. Bryan is a member of the Presbyterian church. But this humble little church, located near his home, and where many of his friends and neighbors worship, appeals strongly to his Christian character.

A friend of mine, the Rev. W. P. Sloucum, who for three years was pastor of the Methodist church here, went to Lincoln a few years ago to take a higher course of study in the M. E. University there, and was for two years pastor of this little church and often had Mr. Bryan as one of his most attentive and interested hearers.

FAMOUS DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION

PERU-NA FOR DYSPEPSIA CATARRH OF STOMACH

Atlantic, Iowa, about one hundred miles distant, Atlantic is a city of some six thousand population situated in one of the loveliest valleys in Iowa. In the late fall of 1898 I worked there for about six weeks. At that time there was but one dwelling house completed, although there were many under way. Two years before that same land, then a howling wilderness was for sale at three dollars an acre. Now the farm lands for miles around are selling from $150 to $200 per acre.

From Atlantic I went to Exira Audubon Co., my old stamping ground where I visited for three days. I found H. F. Andrews hard at work. He has considerable law practice, and all of his spare time he devotes to the preparation of his Andrews' family history. He has the material prepared for five or six large volumes, covering as many branches of the family, but is undecided as to the time any of them will be published. I spent one day at the pleasant home of Abbie, Nathan and William Andrews, children of William Andrews, formerly of Lovell, Maine. They have a fine home about three-fourths of a mile out of the dance at Exira and have a large market garden. They live a very quiet life and seem to enjoy life to its full capacity. I also spent one day with Albert Andrews, a former Fryeburg and Chatham boy. He and his good wife own a good home in Exira. He is also the owner of an automobile and is actively engaged in the life insurance business.

One day I spent in Audubon, the county seat and visited between trains, Ella Stearns and her brother Wilber, native born Lovell Center people. Miss Stearns is now serving her sixth year as Superintendent of the Audubon county schools. She has been popular both as a Superintendent and teacher and would doubt not be elected to succeed herself for another term at the fall elections.

Will, or Doc as he is called by everyone, has a fine farm about four miles out of town. He has a bright family and a pleasant home. He moved to his present location about thirty years ago, and has been elected township assessor every year since, but one, when he was visiting in Maine. He says that the people here are so well acquainted with him that when they see him coming the women begin to get dinner.

From Exira I went back to Atlantic where my old Lovell chum, Isaac S. Andrews, now lives at the train and took me out to the farm nearly three miles distant. His wife was away at Des Moines, visiting a daughter. His six children are all living. Matie and Edith are unmarried and living at home. Bess married Chris Rasmussen a real estate man and they have a fine modern home in Atlantic. Ester the youngest is attending the Atlantic high school and boarding with Bess. Estelle married a music teacher named Leach and lives in Des Moines. They have one child, a boy. James lives near Douglas, Wyo. He is married and has one child.

On March 28, having finished up my visiting tour I started for home and arrived in Hurley before daylight the next morning. The winter here has been very dry. March came in like a lion and we all hope it will go out like a lamb. The crops here in the west last year were badly mixed. On my farm the corn made thirty five bushels; oats, twenty, and wheat about sixteen bushels per acre. Corn is now worth 55, oats, 40 and wheat around 90 cents per bushel. I have heard of two farm sold at $100, and one at $130 per acre near by.

I expect to remain here on the farm until some time in May then return to Fairport Harbor, Ohio, to enjoy the fishing season.

ALBANY.
Rob Edwards, who has been spending a few weeks with his uncle, D. A. Cummings, has gone to West Bethel to work.

Leslie Cummings and bride spent Saturday night and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Cummings.

Mrs. E. T. Judkins has returned home after visiting relatives and friends in Norway, Oxford, Lewiston and Auburn. The writer had the pleasure of attending the dance at Hunt's Corner given by Round Mountain grange and wishes to say that it was one of the cleanest, nicest times it has been their lot to attend in a long time. The music was furnished by H. W. Newell Andrews and Mrs. Elmer Henley. Everyone seemed to be having a good time. Ice cream and cake was served at intermission. At the close of the dance, Mrs. Henley, the organist, gave a vocal selection. She was given a most hearty encore to which she and Annie York generously responded with another beautiful selection. The writer was told that this was no digression from the usual program as Mrs. Henley has been in the habit of giving the audience the benefit of her beautiful voice at the close of nearly all the dances held this season.

OAKS.
Fletcher Scribner, who has been very poorly, is improving.

The South Otisfield corn shop is running for a few days, canning beans.
